Discussion

Discussion: Week 8

- Please address the following topic for Discussion 8:
 - In hindsight, it seems like Bowie accomplished his best work when he spent the least amount of time thinking about it. In your opinion, how much of creativity comes in flashes and how much comes after prolonged thought? At what point does working with an idea become overworking an idea? Can you think of other cases where an artist lost their creative spark when they began to overthink their ideas?
- Some ideas to get you thinking:
 - Reflect back on the Discussion 2 writeup about creativity. How did you define creativity? Then, decide what overthinking means in the context of creativity. Does overthinking have to do with second-guessing one's natural or authentic impulses? What can that lead to? For example, do you think overproducing music is often related to overthinking a musical idea?
